2024 World Academicians' Forum on Advanced Science and Technology Notice

Distinguished Experts and Scholars,

To gather the world's top minds and wisdom, to facilitate the aggregation of high-level talents, scientific research, and industrial upgrading and development, and to create an academic exchange and industry matching platform with global influence, Nanjing University and the Association of British Chinese Professors will jointly initiate and host the "2024 World Academicians' Forum on Advanced Science and Technology" (WAFAST 2024) in Suzhou, China, from July 10 to 12, 2024.

The forum will focus on the theme of "Life and Health, New Materials and New Energy", bringing together top scholars in related fields worldwide to share the latest advancements and future trends. The forum will invite experts mainly from the Chinese Academy of Sciences, Chinese Academy of Engineering, and the Royal Academy of Engineering of the United Kingdom to gather in Suzhou and discuss at Nanjing University. Through high-quality sharing of scientific and technological achievements and high-level talent exchanges, the forum aims to promote international academic exchanges, cooperative innovation, and the transformation of scientific and technological achievements. It will enhance openness, trust, and cooperation in the international scientific community, and promote more significant original innovations and breakthroughs in key core technologies, playing an important role in building a community with a shared future for mankind. We warmly welcome leaders, experts, and researchers from global scientific research institutions, universities, and high-tech enterprises in relevant fields to actively participate.
